

Science in the news

Newspapers want catchy headlines, scientists care about the details. The tension between journalists and scientists will be addressed in this talk by Kai Kupferschmidt, who is a leading science journalist and correspondent of Science magazine. Open to all with an interest in science communication and journalism. The talk will take place in the Aula of the FSU main university building and followed by a networking opportunity.

Further information here

Date and Time

September 19, 2019 // 16:00

Location

Location: Aula, University Main Building, Fürstengraben 1